Beware of Ointments for Catarrh that contain Mercury.

As mercury will surely destroy the sense of smell and completely derange the whole system when entering it through the mucous surfaces. Such articles should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do is ten fold to the good you can possibly derive from them. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, contains no mercury, and is taken internally, and acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. In buying Hall's Catarrh Cure, be sure you get the genuine. It is taken internally, and made in Toledo, O. by F. J. Cheney & Co. Sold by Druggists price 75 cents per bottle.

December 12.—Grand concert by the Philharmonic Club of Boston and Miss Ellen Berg, pianiste, assisted by Mme. Axeline de Berg-Löfgren, prima donna soprano from the Royal Opera, Stockholm. This is the closing entertainment and is sure to be one of its greatest attractions.

Democrats hold their Caucus.

The Democrats of this town met in the Town Hall, last night to choose delegates to the different conventions and transact other business. There was a fair attendance and quite a little enthusiasm. Mr. Morton chairman of the Town Committee called the gathering to order and he was also made permanent chairman and J. J. Sweeney was elected secretary.

On motion of Selectman Stark a committee consisting of W. G. Goldsmith, P. J. Scott, and J. J. Sweeney was appointed to retire and bring in a list for the delegations. They afterwards reported the following delegates and the report was accepted.

State—S. B. Locke, J. M. Bradley, W. G. Goldsmith, John S. Stark.

Congressional—John S. Stark, J. W. Higgins, P. J. Scott, J. J. Sweeney.

Senatorial—J. M. Bradley, J. J. Sweeney, Owen Caffrey, John W. Scott.

County—C. W. Thwing, W. Quinn, J. Davey, Lawrence Riley.

Councillor—J. W. Higgins, J. Hudson, M. O'Shea, James Nolan.

Town Committee—J. M. Bradley, J. J. Sweeney, P. J. Scott, William Frosch, E. E. Trefry, M. T. Welch, J. W. Higgins.

The chairman stated that several democrats had interested themselves in obtaining money to purchase a banner, but more funds were needed and he asked all to contribute, as they desired to pay for it by popular subscription. The banner is to hang across Main Street fron Valpey's store to Carter's Block and will probably contain the names of the heads of the national and state nominees and also the name of Congressman Stevens. They expect to put it up next Wednesday night. John S. Stark spoke in eulogistic terms of the good work of the town committee in the past, especially its interest in his behalf and hoped the new committee would do as well. He also spoke of decrease in the Republican majority in town and other things which pleased his hearers.

J. M. Bradley followed in the somewhat the same strain, urging aggressive work. He believed their congressman and senator would be elected, but considered the representative a hopeless case, although that might not be so always. S. B. Locke also made remarks.

Marcus Morton resigned as chairman of the Town Committee, as he was about to leave town, and M. T. Welch was elected to fill out his unexpired term, which contines to the end of this year. A vote of thanks was extended to Mr. Morton by the caucus for his active interest in behalf of Democracy in Andover. The caucus then dissolved.

Facts about Phillips Academy.

The prosperity of Phillips Academy has also been largely promoted by the good will, and words, and deeds of the citizens of Andover, who have always been conspicuously loyal to the best traditions and zealous for the highest welfare of their schools. Indeed, from those families where the school-boy has found a temporary home, the school has received intelligent and faithful co-operation to a degree, it is believed, rarely experienced elsewhere.

Out of the academic life, too, have been organized most potent means of culture and training: besides the "manennobling agora," the School-meeting, there is the Philomathean Society for literary improvement, which celebrated its 50th anniversary in 1875; and the Society of Inquiry for directing and promoting the religious life of the school, which celebrated its 50th anniversary in 1883. The work done by both these organizations has been of the highest excellence; and they are deservedly proud of the distinction which their graduate members have won, both at college and in after life. There is also The Mirror, the literary magazine of "The Philo.," founded in 1855, issued weekly, and published at the end of each term; and The Phillipian, the weekly paper of the school (issued twice a week since 1887), founded in 1879: the management of these periodicals, entirely in the hands of the boys themselves, is, of course, a most valuable experience and excellent discipline. Then the annual spring and autumn athletic contests with our namesake of Exeter give an impulse and importance to out-of-door life which is incomparable; and constitute a notable part of the training, scarcely less than that of the classroom, which is inherent in, and inseparable from, the school life itself. . . .

Phillips Academy has always been a "free public school," as the founders intended; its privileges have been available for every sect and class, not only for the sons of the rich who could pay for their tuition and assessed fee, but equally also for the poor who could pay for their instruction only with their priceless fidelity and industry. And nothing is more common than to see the rich and the poor associating together on grounds of absolute equality in rights and privileges and social fellowships, in spite of antecedents most diverse.

The average annual expenditure is about $600; yet some boys spend $1200, without being extravagant. Several boys in each class earn enough by tutoring or otherwise to meet all their expenses; others meet every demand and supply every need with $300 a year. However, had every boy who has studied at the Academy within the past ten years, paid the regular assessment for tuition, the receipts of the Treasurer during that time would have been $25,000 larger than they were. During this same time, also, needy young men have been aided from the funds of the institution to the amount of $7,000. So that within the past decade alone, the Academy has furnished pecuniary aid to needy students to the amount of $32,000,—or a sum sufficient to endow a professorship.—From Prof. Coy's Historical Sketch of Phillips Academy.

Not for School, but for Life.

The following are a few extracts from a very interesting article in the Sunday School Times by Rev. Geo. F. Kengott, who is well known in this town:

The chief end of a course of training in school and college is to teach one how to study, how to work. The main purpose of "going to school" is not simply to learn facts and formulas, certainly not to gain marks and prizes. If the grammar school or the college does not teach one the proper use of his talents and his opportunities, if it does not instruct him to do the best work in the best manner in the shortest possible time, so far his education has been a failure, though he may have attended school for a score of years, and be a veritable "walking dictionary."

The aim of every teacher should be to e-ducate, "to draw out" from the pupil, not alone to pour in and to cram in. Much of the lack in originality among the boys and girls in the schools is due to the false instruction of those teachers who force things into the minds of the pupils without drawing out. Mental stagnation is the result; even as the beautiful and verdant meadow-land becomes a bog and swamp, if it continually receives the rains from heaven and the fresh waters from the mountain brooks, and never gives forth verdure and freshness. "Non scholæ sed vitæ discimus" ("Not for school, but for life, we learn") is a good old Roman motto that ought to be written upon the walls of every school, and engraven upon the heart of every scholar. Teachers, schools, and books are here to train us how to study, and how to fit us for the work and joy of life. In all study, therefore, there should be strict honesty, coupled with a right purpose.

As an instructor in algebra for a brief time at Phillips Academy, Andover, I had a laughable experience. A number of examples had been given out for the class to work at home. When I examined the work the next evening, I was shocked, and yet amused, to find that nearly a third of the class had copied the answer to a certain problem directly from the "key," which they had somewhere obtained, without doing the work. In this case the "key" was wrong, and the boys had been entrapped.

If the boy or girl at school is strictly honest in all the work of school, and pure in thought, I believe the purpose will be right. The right purpose for each pupil is to do the best he can each day. It is not simply to surpass some one else, not to gain marks or prizes. Some go to school because they are compelled, like "dumb driven cattle;" some, because they want to have a "good time;" some to "show off;" some, because it is "the thing"; a few go with a true, good purpose. The child, as the man, is responsible for being true to himself, and for making the most of whatsoever talents he may have.

Great Schools an Honor.

A great school or cluster of schools gives celebrity to a town or city. And it is a unique celebrity, and one that is most desirable. Passing by the nicknames that get fastened upon certain places and give an ill savor, we notice another kind of name—a pet name—which is sometimes pleasantly associated with a place. One is styled the "city of brotherly love," another is the "city of churches," and another "the garden city," and still another is "the city of elms." But a university town, like Oxford and Cambridge in England, like Cambridge, New Haven and Princeton in this country, has a reputation by itself, honorable, desirable, distinctive. It speaks of intelligence, refinement and power,—the power which learning gives, the power which creates and governs wealth, which turns the wilderness into a fruitful field, which invents and drives machinery, which rules in senates and cabinets, and directs the might of red-handed war. More than this, it is the power which in its wide scope and subtle influence expands and uplifts individual souls and makes them more capable of service to the God who made them.

And thus it is in regard to towns and cities which are noted for schools devoted to secondary instruction. Academies and great schools where boys and girls begin their career, to end in colleges and universities or in happy homes and stations of usefulness and honor, are lifted up in the midst of other towns as cities set upon a hill. These institutions give reputation and character to the town. So it was with New Ipswich and Westford, and Dudley and Litchfield, and many other places where the youth gathered in the old-time academies. So is it now with Ashberaham and Wilbraham, with Easthampton and Andover and Exeter. Let the town become noted for thrift, business ability, mechanical ingenuity, beauty of location and surroundings, industry and good morals, yet the fact that it is the seat of famous schools will be a peculiar honor.—Rev. A. P. Marvin.

At the Tail End, of Course.

A committee of the United States Senate has been investigating the public high school courses pursued in different sections of the country with a view to bringing up the grade of the Washington schools so as to enable them to fit young men to enter any of our leading colleges. In the course of the committee's investigations it has been found that but thirty-three cities in the country have high schools which fit their pupils for the first-class colleges, and of these twenty-five are in Massachusetts. Some of the other eight are in New England. The only ones outside were Buffalo, Cincinnati, Cleveland, Denver, Milwaukee, and San Francisco. It is very easy for critics from ignorance, envy, jealousy, or chronic habit of criticism, to attack our Massachusetts schools, but the fact remains that upon every test that has been made the state stands so far ahead of all the rest of the country in school matters as to make her critics appear ridiculously ridiculous. This last test by the United States Senate Committee was not made in the interest of the Old Bay State, far from it, but the report shows that she has twenty-five first-class public high schools for the best fitting for college, while all the rest of the country has but eight, and yet a few men will continue to shut their eyes and ears to the facts and ease their conscience in their ignorance and declare, as they have ever done, that she is at the tail end of the procession and refuse to give a single proof thereof.—Journal of Education.

Must be Equipped.

The history of great foundations has shown that none have been more enduring in form, or more widely or permanently beneficent in their influence, than those made for education. In point of stability they stand first. They are monuments more lasting than brass. The feudal castles and many of the old monasteries of England have fallen into irreparable decay, but the colleges of Oxford have never grown fewer or less imposing. Harrow and Eton and Rugby have always been crowded to overflowing. So with the best schools of our own land. If amply endowed and well equipped for their work and cared for as we care for our choicest treasures they will be perennial fountains, sources of wisdom and true pleasure, and limitless blessing.—Dr. Homer T. Fuller.

No Maze for the Indian.

I happened to be in a launch on the river a few days ago with some red Indians, who were attired—after their habit—in paint and feathers. As we passed along, many of those in boats and on the shore howled and yelled. The Indians did not take the slightest notice, but I could not help thinking that if an Englishman visited them on their native plains they would have received him more civilly.

We got out at Hampton Court, and as I had often heard of the unerring sagacity of Indians in following up a track in a forest I thought that I would test it, and so I put them in the middle of the maze. They walked out of it without a moment's hesitation, walking one behind the other as though it had been no maze, but only a garden path.—London Truth.

People Who Commit Suicide.

Persons quite young or very old rarely commit suicide. Those who decide that life is not worth living are generally in that stage of existence known as "the prime of life." Women from eighteen to twenty-five and men from twenty-one to forty years of age are the most likely to come to the conclusion that they have nothing to live for and to hasten their departure from a world that affords them more sorrow than joy, more misery than happiness.

Poverty and suffering from want or disease do not appear to be the causes of many suicides. Comparatively few suicides are committed in poorhouses or in charity hospitals. They are much more frequent in fine hotels and elegant private houses.—Chicago Journal.

Announcement!

We are pleased to make an announcement in regard to the TOWNSMAN that cannot fail to interest our many readers. Mr. J. S. Colby, a student at the Seminary, has been engaged to conduct a column of editorial matter each week in the TOWNSMAN, and will commence his editorial work next week. The addition of Mr. Colby to the TOWNSMAN staff cannot fail to enlarge the value of the paper for its many readers, and his selection is alike fortunate for publishers and readers.

For 21 years he was connected with the Lowell Vox Populi beginning as apprentice and serving from 1883 to 1891 as editor in chief of that able journal. Mr. Colby gave up his editorial labors to enter the Seminary last year and his many old newspaper friends will welcome the chance to again read words from his vigorous and able pen, even if limited to a TOWNSMAN column each week.

Some excitement has been aroused this week over the discharge and reinstatement of one well known teacher and the resignation of another. The reinstatement of Miss Robinson seems to make right the hasty action of the school committee which turns out to have been caused by a misunderstanding of the facts of the case. But the loss of a teacher of Miss Putnam's ability and worth because the town of Andover hadn't money enough to pay her what she is worth, according to the committee estimate, is something to be very much regretted. Andover is getting her school teachers for very small salaries, and in the past five years our citizens have seen one after another very superior teacher go to other towns because other towns were willing to give better pay for the service obtained. We can afford to have just as good teachers as can be found. No expenditure of money can be made to produce larger benefits, and the sooner our taxpayers realize that the best teachers will not work for the small salaries now prevailing, the sooner will more rapid improvement be noted in our schools.

This week witnesses the opening of our two great academies. From all reports, greater than ever in point of numbers and hence greater in usefulness. The large increase in the number of young ladies at Abbot is a pleasant promise for the success of that institution under its new principal. At Phillips four new teachers have come with the many new boys, and the school is rapidly getting into working shape. With the opening of the Seminary next week, school life in Andover will be at its liveliest.

Cattle Show and Fair.

One week from next Tuesday and Wednesday the annual Essex County cattle show and fair will be held again at Lawrence. The interest in grange exhibits last year was so marked that special premiums will be offered this year. The general programme will be about the same as last year. At 11 A.M., Tuesday, the business meeting will be held in the Court House, and at 1 P.M. there will be a drawing match on Salem Street. Wednesday, at 10 A.M., the customary ploughing match will be held on land east of the air line road of Middlesex Street. At 11.30, Hon. E. P. Dodge of Newburyport will give the annual address in the Lawrence Street Church, which will be followed by the annual dinner in Porter's Hall.

The exhibition of products of the farm, garden, dairy, home, studio, and workshop will be at the City Hall, and entries will close at 11 A.M. on the first day. The hall will be open Tuesday afternoon and evening and all day Wednesday and in the evening. The cattle exhibition will be as before, near the Duck bridge on South Union Street.

Abbot Academy's Sixty-Fourth Year Begun.

Everything was propitious yesterday for the re-opening of the School whose principals since 1853 have been in order Miss Hasseltine, Miss Brown, Miss Taylor, and Miss Philena McKeen. The skies smiled on the scholars and their friends. The teachers were present in the best of health, relieved of anxiety for their colleague, now released from the Normannia. The day scholars gathered in groups upon the steps to welcome the new principal. From Smith Hall with its twenty-five rooms filled with French pupils an informal procession started toward the school-room. A second and a larger band of bright-eyed young ladies poured out of the completed Draper Hall. They represented eighty students, old and new, who occupy every available place but four in the building.

A little before nine o'clock Miss Laura Watson, the principal of the Academy since Sept. 1st., was escorted to her desk by Mr. Draper and Professor Taylor. At her express wish there were no formal exercises of induction. After a verse of "Nearer my God to Thee" had been sung, and prayer offered by Prof. Taylor, Miss Watson addressed the school. In a few words of graceful welcome she recalled what had been done by teachers and trustees to prepare for the pupils before her. Those pupils themselves with their hopes and ambitions to attain what was highest in their own womanhood, were the crowning inspiration of the hour.

Then came classification. Before nightfall some thirty days-cholars had embarked on the school ship thus launched on the waters of Christian education, with her precious freight of a hundred and five souls. May prosperous winds attend her.

G. A. R. Kirmess.

When the Woman's Relief Corps undertakes a thing it is generally a success, and so it was with the G. A. R. Kirmess which was held in the Town Hall Monday and Tuesday evenings. The corps, when Post 99 G. A. R. signified its desire to go to Washington and asked contributions, promised $150 as its part toward carrying out the object and this was the way the members intended to raise that amount, and they did it. The Kirmess was a success in every particular, and the projectors have reason to feel gratified at the result.

By the very pleasing and tasteful manner in which the different sale tables were gotten up and decorated, it could be seen that ladies had got in their handiwork. It was also a very unique idea in having the different tables represent the woman's work on each day of the week and from these tables were sold all kinds of articles appropriate to the work of the day which each represented. Over each table was a motto, which suggested the work of the day. They may be interesting so they are presented here, and doubtless every one can easily tell what occupation is meant by the motto: Monday, "Cleanliness is next to Godliness"; Tuesday, "We smooth out all wrinkles save those of time"; Wednesday, "A stitch in time saves nine"; Thursday, "We welcome our friends"; Friday, "A new broom sweeps clean"; Saturday, "The way to a man's heart." There was also a confectionery table laden with sweets from the store of Nehemiah Smith, formerly of this town, and a place for the serving of ice cream and cake. The different articles sold well and much that was left was sold at auction Tuesday night, J. T. Lovejoy acting as auctioneer.

For entertainment the committee could not have done better than as they did in preparing an old folks concert. The Andover Band Orchestra also assisted materially in making the evenings pleasant. The chorus, which sung old and familiar songs, consisted of about thirty local vocalists and was under the able direction of Geo. W. Stover, David Shaw acting as pianist. Each member of the chorus was appropriately costumed to represent people of "ye olden time" and some especially were remarkably good reproductions.

The chorus was composed of the following persons: Clara Bell, Hannah Howard, Mrs. B. B. Tuttle, M. Lizzie Upton, Mrs. Carruth, Mrs. Haynes, Lucy Roach, Mrs. Fred Andrews, Sarah Hannon, Jessie F. Greene, Mrs. Keeland, Emma Howarth, Mrs. M. E. Gutterson, Mrs. Chas. Marland, Mrs. C. B. Jenkins, Ada Buchan, Mabel Ashness, Maud Ross, C. B. Barnard, R. A. Watson, F. O. Baldwin, Fred A. Andrews, F. H. Foster, H. A. Ramsdell, C. W. Clark, T. F. Pratt, J. V. Holt, H. M. Hayward.

Sheriff Herrick will retire.

The Newburyport News of Tuesday evening had the following:

"Sheriff Herrick has decided to withdraw from the contest for the shrievalty this year. He has determined upon this after noting the strong opposition that was growing regarding his candidacy. The News has been authorized to make this announcement to-day and this will be followed by a letter to the county convention. This leaves the field open to Major Hammond of Haverhill, Captain Sillars of Danvers and Deputy Sheriff Johnson of Salem. The latter has kept in retirement fearing to antagonize his chief, but now he will probably go in to win and he has the backing of Mr. Herrick's friends."

Instantly Killed.

The Boston & Maine railroad near the "White Pups" bridge, just below Frye Village, was the scene of a fatal accident Sunday afternoon. Frank Palmer, an Italian, about 36 years, residing in Haverhill and employed in a shoe factory, was the victim. It happened about 4.30 o'clock. Palmer was on the train from Haverhill on his way to this town to visit his brother Joseph, who is employed by contractor Goodhue on the waterworks extension. He was standing on the rear platform, and while passing the above mentioned place his hat was blown off by the breeze. He immediately jumped off backwards from the swiftly moving train. His feet plunged into the sand fully six inches, while his body, rebounding, turned a somersault, his head striking either on a rail or sleeper, fracturing the skull.

The remains were taken to the South Lawrence depot and viewed by Medical Examiner Howe, who gave his verdict as "accidental death." The top of the head was crushed in and the left leg broken. His brother Joseph at this time was attending to his duties of placing lanterns which marked the open trenches for the extension of the waterworks in Frye Village. His attention was called to the accident, and going to the scene he was horrified to find his own brother cold in death.

Another Accident on the Electric Road.

What might have proved a serious accident on the electric road was averted Sunday afternoon by the carefulness of Motorman Stewart. The car leaving Andover about 5.30 had just safely passed over the railroad bridge and begun its descent of that steep hill to Marland Village. Slightly ahead of the car, and on the left side, a team was also going down. The horse probably became a little frightened and instead of running ahead turned quickly towards the tracks, tipping the carriage so that the occupants were thrown directly between the rails and in front of the car.

Fortunately the car, which was heavily loaded, was running slow and this with the prompt action of the motorman in putting on his brake and reversing the motor prevented a terrible accident. The occupants of the carriage were James O'Donnell, his wife and two sons, of South Tewksbury, and they were enjoying a ride through the town.

The car was brought to a standstill, but not until the woman had been pushed quite a ways by the guard rail, which prevented her going beneath the wheels. Mr. O'Donnell received a gash in the head and Mrs. O'Donnell suffered with a dislocated and possible fractured ankle joint. The boys escaped with slight bruises.

Several passengers became frightened at the sight and jumped. One, Mrs. Geo. Brown of Water Street, Lawrence, fainted and fell from the car, spraining her ankle. The injured ones were taken into a cottage near by and were attended by Drs. Abbott, Scott, and Richards. Drs. Flanders and Howe of Lawrence were also present. The ambulance from Lawrence was sent for and Mrs. O'Donnell was taken to the general hospital, while Mrs. Brown was removed to her home.

A curious fact attending the accidents on the electric road is that they all happened on the eleventh of the month. June 11 was the date of the Frye Village accident, August 11 that at North Andover, and Sept. 11 the one above mentioned.

William S. Knox Republican candidate for Congress.

The republican congressional convention for the fifth district was held in Jackson Hall, Lowell, Tuesday morning. Hon Byron Truell of Lawrence called the gathering to order and Frank L. Weaver of Lowell was chosen chairman, and W. E. Parker, of Lawrence, secretary. Seventy-three delegates were reported present representing three cities and nine towns. One of Andover's delegation was absent, but his place was filled.

William L. Thompson of Lawrence presented to the convention the name of Wm. S. Knox of the same city, Mr. Merrill of Peabody, that of Francis H. Appleton, and T. K. Gilman of North Andover that of Newton P. Frye. An informal ballot was taken, resulting as follows: Whole number of votes, 79; W. S. Knox, Lawrence, 41: F. H. Appleton, Peabody, 33; N. P. Frye, North Andover, 5.

Hon. Byron Truell moved that the ballot be declared formal.

Mr. Merrill of Peabody thought a formal ballot should be taken, as Mr. Knox received but one vote more than a majority. Mr. Truell then withdrew the motion that the ballot be declared formal. The result of the formal ballot was as follows: Whole number of votes, 78; necessary for a choice, 40; William S. Knox of Lawrence 45; Francis H. Appleton of Peabody, 33.

Mr. Knox of Lawrence was declared the nominee. Mr. Merrill of Peabody moved that the nomination of Mr. Knox be made unanimous.

Peter D. Smith of this town was then recommended to the State convention as the candidate for presidential elector, on motion of Barnett Rogers. Mr. Knox and Mr. Appleton were brought before the convention and made fitting remarks.

Grand Army Trip to Washington.

The arrangements are now completed for the trip of Post 99, G.A.R., to Washington to attend the national convention, which opens next Monday and continues until the following Saturday, although there will be little of importance after Thursday. About forty will go from Andover, and as near as can be found out they are as follows:

Ballard Holt,	Geo. Dane,
Geo. F. Holt,	G. H. Graffam,
J. W. Berry,	Peter D. Smith,
J. M Bean,	Jos. Robinson,

S. A. Swanton,	Aaron Hardacre,
W. S. Roundy,	Geo. W. Buchan,
John V. Holt,	B. F. Smith.

The journey will be made all the way by rail without change. A special car will leave this town Sunday morning at 7 o'clock, sharp and will be coupled to the special at Lawrence. It is expected to arrive in Washington at 9.15 P.M.

The route is via Boston & Maine and Baltimore & Ohio: Lawrence to Oakdale, Ware, and Amherst to Northampton on the Connecticut River, and by a branch of the New York, New Haven & Hartford to Simsbury, Conn. From Simsbury the Central New England & Western Road leads through a beautiful part of western Connecticut to Campbell Hall, N.Y., spanning the Hudson River at Poughkeepsie by the famous drouble track iron bridge 6,767 feet long, and one of the great bridges of the world. Beyond Campbell Hall further divisions of the Philadelphia & Reading system, with which the Central New England & Western is also connected, carry the train via Bethlehem to Philadelphia, and the magnificent tracks of the great Baltimore and Ohio Railroad lead thence through Chester, Wilmington, and Baltimore to the national capital. The special train is scheduled to traverse the populous district lying just north of Philadelphia, and to pass through the Quaker City, and thence to Washington. Tickets will be good from Sept. 13th until Oct. 10, and will permit stopover at all points of interest.

The railroad fare is but $12.48 for the round trip from this town. Comfortable quarters for the Post have been engaged, the price being one dollar per man, and each one will look after his own food. There will be a number of side excursions to famous battle grounds and other points of interest, and doubtless many of our veterans will take the opportunity to see them.

The following card, which is self-explanatory, shows the appreciation by the post of the kindness of those who have made it possible for many comrades, who could not otherwise have done so, to enjoy this trip.

Gen. Wm. F. Bartlett Post 99 G. A. R. wish to publicly express to the Bartlett Relief Corps, and to the following citizens of Andover, their sincere thanks and appreciation of the interest and confidence which they have manifested in the Post, and who, by their generosity, have enabled so many of our comrades to revisit Washington, probably to many for the last time. Let the patriotism of Old Andover, and the interest in her soldiers never be less than it was in the days of the Rebellion, when she proudly sent these ex-soldiers to the seat of war to fight for our country and liberty.

So far as heard from, the Republicans have elected 111 representatives and the Democrats 34. The last house consisted of 110 Republicans and 41 Democrats.

PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 15.—Full returns from the legislature elections in 14 counties, with partial returns from the other 2, and the rest estimated, make the next house 110 Republicans and 41 Democrats, the same as in the last legislature.

All of these cases were originally reported to the health department as suspected cholera and have been under the investigation of physicians connected with the department Professor Herman Biggs, who is in charge of the division of pathology and bacteriology of the health department, has been at work making a bacteriological examination of the intestinal fluids taken from the bodies of the suspected cases. Professor Biggs reported to the health department the result of his examination, and announced unhesitatingly that the cases were Asiatic cholera beyond any doubt.

President Wilson of the New York state board of health said that there was no occasion for excitement in this city. The health department has taken every possible measure to prevent the spread of the infection.

IN A LONELY SHANTY

The Body of Mrs. Abigail Rogers is Found at Wendell, Mass.

GREENFIELD, Mass., Sept. 9.—The dead body of Abigail Rogers, aged 58 years, was found yesterday in her one-room house on a lonely mountain road, one-half mile from Farley village, in the town of Wendell. Three fractures of the skull and a pine club covered with blood showed that the woman had been murdered. She was last seen alive last Saturday afternoon.

At times she worked for the Orange Knitting company, whose mill is at Farley, and it was through a son of E. C. Tolman of that company that the murder was discovered.

The motive for the murder was undoubtedly robbery, as the woman was known to have about $40, not a cent of which was found on her person or in the house. Who did the deed is unknown.

For a year the woman has lived alone. Her husband is said to be at Tewksbury, and a son is in Concord reformatory. It is said that the woman had many dissolute visitors. The crime was probably not committed by tramps, but no one is yet suspected. Officer Fowler of Orange has charge of the case.

The body was taken to Orange, where an inquest will be held before Justice Bicknell.

THE GRANITE TROUBLE.

A Step Toward a General Settlement of All Difficulties.

CONCORD, N. H., Sept. 12.—An agreement has been entered into between J. G. Batterson of Hartford, president of the New England Granite works, representing the executive committee of the Granite Manufacturers' association of New England, and the national committee, representing the Granite Cutters' National union, as to a scale of prices. The agreement was reached after a lengthy conference.

March 1, 1895, is a compromise date for the beginning of the new bill of prices, the manufacturers having originally desired Jan. 1, and the national union May 1, as the time. The other subjects in dispute between the cutters and manufacturers must be settled with local branches.

It is anticipated that the principal issue between the manufacturers and local organizations will be relative to non-union men hired and union men who returned to work since the trouble began. It remains with local branches to complete the general settlement.

WHEN THEY WERE BOYS

The Grand Army Will Celebrate Real Old Times.

"ON TO WASHINGTON!" THE CRY.

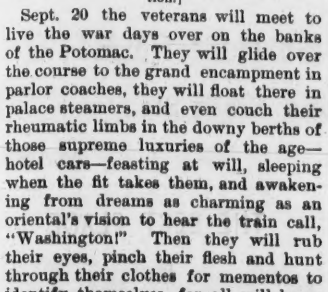

A Retrospect of Their First Trip to the Capital — Scenes That Lie Beyond. The Crack Regiments That Earned Immortal Fame on Eastern Battlefields.

[Copyright, 1892, by American Press Association.]

Sept. 20 the veterans will meet to live the war days over on the banks of the Potomac. They will glide over the course to the grand encampment in parlor coaches, they will float there in palace steamers, and even couch their rheumatic limbs in the downy berths of those supreme luxuries of the age—hotel cars—feasting at will, sleeping when the fit takes them, and awakening from dreams as charming as an oriental's vision to hear the train call, "Washington!" Then they will rub their eyes, pinch their flesh and hunt through their clothes for mementos to identify themselves, for all will be so strange. When they were boys they joked about rooms bespoken at Willard's or the Spottswood, the swell war time hostelries of Washington and Richmond. Now they will be honored guests in quarters that are kingly in contrast with those noted models, and will have the keys to a city where splendor paints the air with a royal tinge.

In 1861 they were happy to secure a bench in a box car, and thought nothing of riding on the bumpers and holding on to the brakemen's ladders. Anything above an open flat car was a prize, and they would even be thankful for standing room in one of them as a means of getting to the seat of war somehow, or, if put to a pinch, go afoot and not grumble at bad walking. Once there a berth on the pavement was a stroke of fortune, for a bed in the mud was a common lot, while a strip of sward 6 feet by 2 on Capitol Green was elegance itself.

Very modest and timid at first about taking liberties in the holy city, their shyness vanished in a day or two and Washington, that didn't press honors and cheer upon them contained nothing too good in their eyes for the men who were to save it. They made a cooking camp on the grounds around the treasury, bivouacked under the overhanging scaffolds of the Capitol rotunda and in the chambers and committee rooms of congress. Groups of mild eyed but savage clad zouaves picketed the streets and squares, picturesque reminders that the much decried military power was for once on top. Fremont, the ex-pioneer and explorer, and Little Mac, the ex-railroad builder, riding down Pennsylvania avenue, the one in his wild west trappings, the other in his trim, simple, regular army clothes, gave notice that the nation had suspended the chase after the almighty dollar to go gunning for marplots.

The social entertainment of the boys at the capital in 1861 was as informal and primitive as their fare. Guests of the republic's court residence and invited there to defend it, they were obliged to help themselves to a smack of Washington life, yet even in that manner saw something to recall at this date for their children and grandchildren. They clambered over builders' debris on the Capitol plaza, dodged among scaffoldings and derricks that encumbered the way around porticos, galleries and corridors, querying whether the mammoth pile was ever to be finished and serve its true purpose.

They haunted the navy yard and arsenal to see how solid Uncle Sam might be in thunder making supplies, roamed through the Smithsonian and patent office, eyed the treasury and war buildings with awe or with skepticism, according as pay days were prompt or languishing and battles good or bad for our side. They scoured the town looking for ducal parks and palaces in their innocence, and at last voted the place a worn eaten, ramshackle village, then pulled their war enthusiasm up to the fighting point by elbowing through the crowds to shake "Father Abram's" hand and congratulate the nation, while commiserating the sad eyed martyr that he was in the president's chair.

This trip public spirited Washington will look after their good cheer in a way to set their eyes agog, and once more they'll look back thirty years, with the exclamation, "Is this Washington?" or, "Am I myself or some other fellow?" In some respects the great contrasts will be reversed. The parade on Pennsylvania avenue to commemorate the grand review of 1865 will lack nothing in enthusiasm, though the color of the great original can never be reproduced. It will be a renewal of youth to every man in the Grand Army line. Then when the last tattoo sounds beside the Potomac's shore the plodding pilgrimage will begin to scenes of other memories. Washington recalls the victory, the glory; the battlefields beyond recall the deeds that purchased both. On that pilgrimage two columns will join their marches, our Grand Army and the Grand Army gone before, that ghostly column the poet had in vision when he wrote:

And I saw a phantom army come
With never a sound of fife or drum,
But keeping step to a muffled hum
Of wailing and lamentation.

The martyred heroes of Malvern Hill,
Of Gettysburg and Chancellorsville—
The men whose wasted bodies fill
The patriot graves of the nation.

* * * * * * *

All night long moved the strange array;
And all night long till the break of day
I watched for one who had passed away,
With reverent awe and wonder,
Till a blue cap waved in the lengthening line
And I knew that one who was kin of mine
Had come. * * *

When that march begins the old army will materialize into regiments, brigades and corps out of the posts of the G. A. R.

While going the rounds from Cemetery Hill to Five Forks, let there be a new canonization—a calling out of the forty immortals of the Army of the Potomac, the forty infantry regiments whose dead on those fields scored above 200 killed in battle. There are just forty of them and in state lines knew no east nor west. New Hampshire heads the list of these crack regiments with the famous "Fighting Fifth," that scored a death roll on the field of 295. Pennsylvania follows with the Eighty-third's death roll of 282. Ten other Keystone regiments appear in this list, the One Hundred and Fifth, that lost 245; the Sixty-first, 237; the Eleventh, 236; the Forty-fifth, 227; the One Hundredth, 224; the One Hundred and Forty-eighth, 210; the Eighty-first, 208; the Fifty-fifth, also 208; the One Hundred and Forty-fifth, 205, and the Fifty-third, 200.

The third place on the list is held by Wisconsin, with the Seventh, that lost 281. The Sixth Wisconsin has a place lower down, with 244 for a record of killed, and the Second Wisconsin is close to that, with 238.

Michigan is in the fourth place, next following her sister state. Her Fifth regiment lost 263. Five other Michigan regiments have places—the Sixteenth, with 247; the Twenty-seventh, 225; the Second, also 225; the Eighth, 223, and the Seventh, 208.

Massachusetts comes fifth on the list, with the Twentieth regiment at 260. Just below is the Twenty-eighth, with 250, and down the line the Fifteenth, with 241; the Twenty-second, with 216; the Ninth, with 209, and the Fifty-seventh, 201.

New York, that shed more heart's blood than any other state, because she had more—but she did give it—New York comes in for the sixth place, and that is held by the gallant Sixty-ninth (Irish), with a roll of 259 killed. The Empire State appears again with the Fortieth (Mozart regiment), scoring 238; the One Hundred and Twenty-first, 226; the One Hundred and Eleventh, 220, and the Fifty-first, 202.

New Jersey holds the twelfth place on the list, the seventh to eleventh being taken by regiments named with their state leader. The Fifteenth New Jersey lost 240 killed.

Vermont has her first honor in the twenty-third place, with the Second, that lost 221 killed; the Fifth lost 208; the Third, 206, and the Sixth, 203.

These four regiments, together with the Fourth Vermont, formed the famous Vermont brigade, that lost more men killed on the field than any other brigade in the army, east or west.

Maine scores one in the thirty-second place, the Seventh, that lost 207. But she is at the head in two other lists of crack regiments noted below.

Connecticut is thirty-fifth, with the Fourteenth, that lost 205, and Indiana is thirty-eighth, with the Twentieth, that lost 201.

Another band of immortals that fought over the bloody ground of the Potomac is the nine regiments of heavy artillery that scored records of over 200 killed. They were all recruited for garrison duty, and went to the front in 1864. Their losses were remarkable, because they nearly all occurred within ninety days, in the battles of May, June and July, at Spottsylvania, Cold Harbor and Petersburg. The list is headed by the First Maine, with its 423 killed. Next follows the Eighth New York, with 361. The Empire State has four other representatives in the band—the Seventh, with 291 killed; the Fourteenth, with 226; the Second, with 214, and the Ninth, with 204. The Second Connecticut lost 254, the First Massachusetts 241, and the Second Pennsylvania, 233.

It is popularly supposed that heavy artillery regiments had more men to expose to the enemy's bullets than did the infantry, and for that reason cannot fairly rival the latter in a comparison of losses. Here are three facts bearing on that point. The forty immortals in the infantry of the Army of the Potomac are led by the Fifth New Hampshire, which carried 2,500 men on its rolls, and 295 of them were killed. The Seventh New York Heavy artillery carried less than 2,700 men on its rolls, and 291 of them were killed. That is about even, allowing for all contingencies. But the Eighth New York pulls the artillerymen ahead by a long reach. It carried less than 2,600 men on its rolls, and 361 of them were killed. In other words, with only eighty more men on its rolls its killed numbered sixty-six more than the New Hampshire infantry lost.

Now for the immortals on horseback. The nine cavalry regiments of the Union that lost over 100 men killed in battle belonged to the Army of the Potomac and rode to the charge and raid in the narrow strip between the Susquehanna and the James. Maine heads this band also, and with its First cavalry and a score of 174 killed. Michigan follows, with three claimants in rotation—the First, with 164; the Fifth, with 141, and the Sixth, with 135.

Vermont claims a place in this list with its First cavalry, that scored 134. New York has two names on the roll, her First Dragoons, that lost 130, and the Second cavalry, that lost 121. New Jersey is represented by her First cavalry, with 128 killed, and Pennsylvania by the Eleventh regiment, with 119. The troopers won their honors by hard fighting, where Kilpatrick, Custer, Gregg, Torbert, Wilson and Kautz led them against Stuart, Hampton, Rosser and the Lees.

Another band of immortals whose honors belong to the Potomac field comprises the ten regiments that suffered the heaviest in killed, counting percentages on the number enrolled. The first three lost over 19 per cent., or about one in every five enrolled. These were the Second Wisconsin, 19.7 per cent.; the First Maine Heavy artillery, 19.2 per cent., and the Fifty-seventh Massachusetts, 19.1 per cent. The One Hundred and Fortieth Pennsylvania lost 17.4 per cent.; the Seventh and the Twenty-sixth Wisconsin, each 17.2 per cent., and the Sixty-ninth New York, 17.1 per cent., the killed in these four regiments being about one in six of those enrolled. In the remaining three of this immortal ten the loss was about one in seven of the enrollment. They were all Pennsylvanians, the Eleventh scoring 16.6 per cent.; the One Hundred and Forty-second, 16.5, and the One Hundred and Forty-first, 16.1 per cent.

Last and greatest of all, when the supreme test is applied, come the immortal five regiments that lost in killed in single battles a proportion considerably greater than one to five of the number engaged. These five made their remarkable records on the eastern fields. At the top stands the First Minnesota, which in a charge at Gettysburg left 28 per cent. of its men dead or mortally wounded. The Fifteenth New Jersey left 24 per cent. of its fighting strength dead or dying at Spottsylvania, and two weeks later, at Cold Harbor, the Twenty-fifth Massachusetts dropped 24 per cent. of its men in front of a single breastwork. The One Hundred and Forty-first Pennsylvania also lost 24 per cent. in the Peach Orchard fight at Gettysburg.

"LITTLE MAC" AND DEVIL DAN.

The fifth in this list is the famous Duryea's Zouaves, that lost 23 per cent. in one dash at Second Bull Run. Its death roll was 117, the highest in any Union regiment in a single battle during the war. Every unit in all these startling numbers represents a hero, and it is not getting very close to the individual to simply name a regiment's total. But to his comrades each brave boy will seem to stand in line and answer "Here!" on the very ground where his young life was given to his country.

Fuller secured the animal before any damage had been done, and the owner and his family who had started toward Andover were overtaken by Miss Carrie Fuller and the horse and carriage were safely delivered to them. Obituary.

DEATH OF A FORMER RESIDENT.

The sad tidings of the sudden death of Mrs. M. Lizzie (Worthing), wife of Mr. Erastus W. Horne of Lynn, came last week to our townspeople. For more than a week previous to her death she had been very ill and her strength rapidly declined; at the time when her death occurred she was visiting, in company with her daughter, at the home of her sister in Berlin Falls, N. H. Mrs. Horne was for 25 years a resident of North Andover, and about four years ago removed from among us to Lynn. Mrs. Horne was a native of China, Me., where she was born 45 years ago. She was well known to a large number of people in town and those who were most intimate with her remember her kindly acts, her genial hospitality, her devotion to household duties, and her cheerful and friendly ways. She was a member of the M. E. Church of this town and her associates there well knew her many good qualities. Of the immediate family besides a husband, two daughters, Misses Emily and Cora, survive her; of other near relatives are four sisters and one brother: Mrs. E. B. Farris, Moline, Ill.; Mrs. W. S. Currier, Portsmonth, N. H.; Mrs. P. F. Hanlon, Berlin Falls, N. H.; Mrs. A. F. Spaulding, Weeks Mills, China, Me.; Mr. Chas. A. Worthing, Lynn. Prayer was offered at the family home in Lynn by Rev. Mr. Cushman of Trinity Church of that city. The remains were then brought to this town and impressive services were held Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock in the Methodist Church, Rev. W. W. Baldwin of Athol, a former pastor, officiating. Hymns of which the deceased was fond were rendered by the quartette: Mrs. J. A. Bedell, Miss Mary A. Stone, Messrs. E. S. Colby and J. M. Towne. A sermon and prayers were offered for the departed by the officiating clergyman under whose pastorate she became a member of the church. The black cloth covered casket, entirely surmounted with floral tributes of affection, rested in front of the pulpit. Many friends and old acquaintances of the deceased and family gathered with the relatives in the church to witness the last ceremonies and to manifest their sympathy for the bereaved family. The bearers were from town: Messrs. James A. Dow, V. B. Watts, Geo. A. Keniston, and Wm. A. Johnson. Among the floral tributes were: At the head of the casket a large pillow inscribed with the words "wife" and "mother," from the husband and children; broken wreath, from the sisters and brother; two dozen white roses, sister Bell; one dozen yellow roses, Miss Hill; bouquet, Mrs. A. W. Brainerd; large basket, Ladies Circle and congregation of M. E. Church; basket, Miss Lettie M. Barker; mound, friends in Lynn; bouquets, Mrs. Distin, Mr. Theo. Goodrich, Mr. and Mrs. John Phillips. Besides those upon the casket other flowers at the right and left of the pulpit were furnished by kindly friends. The body was interred in Ridgewood cemetery.
